Projects

Over the years ICME has successfully managed many multi-faceted and complex projects in partnership with public and private clients. A summary of our most recent and exciting projects can be found below:

Performing clinical audits for a variety of specialities for a large public hospital system

ICME worked with Protiviti to conduct several clinical service line audits for governmental hospitals across the Emirate of Abu Dhabi, analysing the data collected and providing recommendations and findings based on international best-practice.

Ambulatory care centres, Abu Dhabi

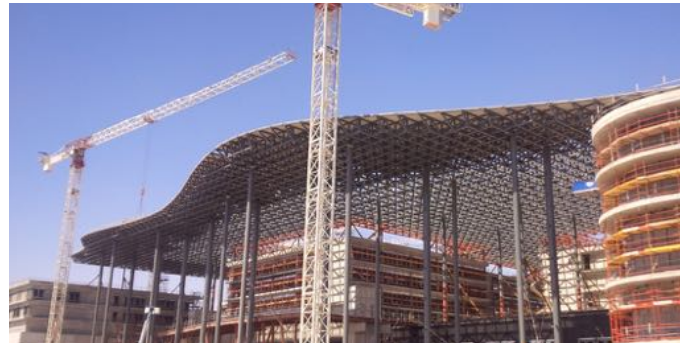

In 2010, ICME designed a complete ambulatory care strategy for the Emirate of Abu Dhabi. This strategy led to a plan for the development of new outpatient care facilities that assessed long-term and short-term feasibility and determined the requirements of future ambulatory care services. Based on these requirements, ICME designed two facility prototypes. To date, three facilities have been constructed and are operational.

Strategic study for the provision of cardiovascular services

Working in Yogyakarta, Indonesia, ICME assessed and evaluated the region's needs for a comprehensive cardiovascular delivery model, starting with a detailed baseline analysis of the current healthcare market structure.

Al Ain Hospital

The new Al Ain Hospital is currently being developed in the oasis city. ICME has had a heavy involvement in the project since 2009, when we were asked to conduct the initial planning study. Subsequent services have included hospital development and planning, medical programming, design supervision, and currently site supervision.

Reengineering the existing operating model in a university hospital

ICME worked in cooperation with Sodexo to deliver a thorough analysis of the Singaporean healthcare market with a focus on central sterilisation and supply procedures. The result was a well-defined business case for a shared, centralised sterile supply service.
